Five damaged

Schools to reopen Thursday for the last day of classes

Calgary's public and Catholic schools will remain closed until Thursday, and five buildings damaged by water won't reopen for classes until fall.

Officials confirmed late Sunday that all buildings will open for one more day of classes before breaking for summer.

"We thought it was in the interest of students and parents that they return for a final get-together ... to bring to a close, emotionally, for students, the end of the school year," said Frank Coppinger, superintendent for infrastructure with the Calgary Board of Education (CBE). "Secondly, there are intangible reasons, like the exchange of books (and) report cards."

The CBE's Elbow Park and Rideau Park schools were damaged by water, and the Calgary Catholic School District also believes water got into St. Monica, St. Mary's and Our Lady of Lourdes.

Coppinger said it will likely be months before either of the buildings he oversees are fully restored.

Both he and Calgary Catholic School District spokesperson Janet Corsten encouraged parents continuously check the organization and individual school websites for updates.

Alberta Education announced Saturday that, as a result of the flooding disaster, all Grade 9 provincial exams are cancelled and Grade 12 students will receive an exemption on their diploma tests unless they choose to write them.

Some city services will be withheld as staff are diverted to other areas

Owners of downtown businesses and residential suites are being allowed back into the core to assess flood damage, but workers are being urged to stay away until at least Wednesday.

Even when things do return to normal, some commuters may be forced to rely on shuttle buses to get around, as city officials revealed Sunday that the Calgary Transit LRT line running south sustained damage from the fast-moving waters.

"We will be working hard to restore service back to the northeast, northwest and west within the next two days," Mayor Naheed Nenshi said during a Sunday evening briefing.

Two LRT tunnels along the south line were damaged, and photos that circulated over the weekend appear to show track damage near Eglinton station.

City crews hoped to reopen the Centre Street Bridge early Monday to ease traffic pressure.

Earlier in the day, the city allowed 65,000 residents evacuated on Thursday and Friday to return home. However, areas in Bowness, Sunnyside and Elbow Park were still without a working sewer system.

Residents were told to steer clear of their homes if water rose above any electrical outlet.

"Water and electricity don't mix," Nenshi said.

Enmax crews were able to restore power to a vital substation downtown on Sunday, which appeared to improve the prognosis for the core.

Crews also determined Sunday that a second substation inundated with water in Douglasdale did not sustain significant damage, despite Enmax CEO Gianna Manes stating earlier in the day it had "become part of the Bow River."

Elsewhere, some city services will be reined in as many staff are diverted to flood recovery. Blue-bin recycling, for example, is suspended indefinitely, but black-bin garbage

Death in Mission

Police discovered the body of an 88-year-old woman in a main-level apartment in Mission on Sunday.

- However, it's unclear if her death was related to flooding in the city.
- Deputy Police Chief Trevor Daroux did confirm there was water in the woman's suite and it's believed she chose to ignore an evacuation order for the area.

Calgarians return to rebuild

Ongoing crisis.

Many evacuees still not cleared to return home as those who do cope with damage, theft

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Some of the roughly 65,000 Calgarians returning from evacuation Sunday found their homes pretty much as they left them, while others found devastation from both nature and their fellow man.

Numerous Britannia residents along Riverdale Avenue S.W. said their homes had been broken into, just as they had been during the last flood evacuation in 2005.

The difference this time around was that the rising Elbow River actually reached many homes along the low-lying road.

"The last flood, we didn't get a drop in (the house)," said Jerry Schwartz, 82, who has lived in the same house since 1980 and has never seen the water rise anywhere near as high as it did over the weekend.

Schwartz's main floor was severely damaged by the flood and his basement still had about four inches of water in it on Sunday afternoon, with a thick layer of mud covering his basement stairs.

Up the street, Michael Fishman said he and other family members tried to guard his parents' home as best they could, but had to eventually leave the area late Friday night.

"We've chased off a bunch of guys down here," he said.

When the area was offi-

Recovery mode

"We are trying to do as much as we can, as fast as we can ... Now it's time for the dirty work."

Mary-Beth Hansen, who said the water that overtook her home reached the top of her house's main floor cially cleared for re-entry Sunday afternoon, Fishman said the family found a smashed window and numerous items missing, including a computer, jewelry and several paintings.

"They were probably on bikes, because they didn't take the frames," said Ashley Beames, Fishman's niece.

Residents of the flood-ravaged community of Bowness, meanwhile, put on a brave face and prepared for an extensive cleanup.

"We are trying to do as much as we can, as fast as we can," said Mary-Beth Hansen, who lives on Bow Crescent. "Now it's time for the dirty work."

Hansen said she was shocked by the sheer volume of water that overtook her home, reaching all the way to the top of the main floor of her two-storey house.

Many evacuees wasted no time upon their return, immediately pumping basements and working against the sun to shovel off the thick layers of mud that had built up on driveways, sidewalks and decks before it could dry.

Despite facing devastation of his own, local construction company owner Harvey Farand was quick to help out his fellow residents on Bow Crescent and beyond, lending out generators and pumps to those in need.

In front of Farand's home lay a wasteland of his new vehicles, including his truck and two new custom Harley-Davidson motorcycles, which he was unable to get out before the rise of the flood waters.

Hansen said she has been touched by the generosity Calgarians have shown throughout the crisis.

"The people have just been unbelievable," she said.

Priceless possessions

Personal paintings among the items stolen, damaged by burglars

Arthur Fishman returned from evacuation Sunday to find his Britannia home had not only been damaged by record-breaking floods but also looted.

Among the missing items were several of his own treasured paintings — renderings of places that had inspired him.

"Some of them are from when I went to school, which was 65 years ago," said Fishman. Other pieces were painted more recently.

Surveying several of the soaked paintings laid outside his house to dry, Fishman blamed the looters for the water damage.

"We had a robbery. They broke the door. Otherwise, there wouldn't be any water in here," he said of the front room, where the paintings were stored.

Despite the losses, Fishman remained optimistic about his situation.

"It's a headache, but it can be fixed," he said. "When it's over, we'll forget all about it."

Safety inspection crews working 'around the clock' to get city running

As most Calgarians have been sleeping, dozens of teams of safety-code officers have been poking and prodding at the guts of buildings in evacuated zones, working to clear neighbourhoods for the safe return of residents.

"Crews have been working around the clock," said Assistant Deputy Fire Chief Tyler Pelke. "We'll continue to do so 24/7 until we can get people back in."

Each team is composed of a building safety code officer and a fire prevention safety code officer, and together they check flood-affected buildings for signs of potential danger.

"Mostly now we're looking at wet electrical gear," said chief building official Kevin Griffiths. "Generally, the services need to be reviewed. It would be in extreme cases that the structure would be compromised."

One of 20 teams out in the wee hours of Sunday morning took a close look at the Trimac House highrise at 800-5 Ave. S.W.

They discovered that while the building looked dry from the outside, several levels of the underground parkade were full of water.

"The good news on this one was that the switch gear, the electrical gear, was outside of the water, which was critical," said Griffiths.

Once the water fully recedes, Griffiths said, crews will check back to make sure the electricity, gas, water and wastewater services are functional and the structural integrity of the building is sound before giving the go-ahead for the building to be reoccupied.

"In residential areas it's the same approach," Pelke said. "People need to get back in their homes and we will do our best to get them back in as quickly as possible."

Despite crews working non-stop, the sheer volume of buildings in flood-affected areas needing to be inspected means the process will likely take "several days," said chief building official Kevin Griffiths.

Siksika

'Huge concern' as First Nations residents stranded

Hundreds of residents were stranded Sunday on two First Nations reserves near Calgary with floodwaters reaching halfway up some houses on Siksika, east of Calgary.

Siksika

Monique Fry, a community liaison with the Calgary Urban Aboriginal Initiative, said the latest reports Sunday indicated that livestock were drowning in Siksika and many residents remained cut off from supplies.

"There are huge concerns over there," she said. "The (First Nations) among themselves are trying to coordinate with evacuations, but there are so many issues."

Fry, meanwhile, helped with organizing supplies Sunday for the Morley reserve, west of Calgary. She said it appears every home there has a flooded basement and many elders in the community are stranded in the upper storeys of their home.

"People are using ATVs and four-by-fours to try to get to them," she said. "The problem is there are no phones — we don't know what they need until we get there."

RCMP said in a release Sunday that flooding from the Bow River had not made its way to Morley, but some problems remained.

"The issues on Morley First Nation stem from rainwater washing out some remote roads, sewer backup and some basement flooding," RCMP said in the release. "The situation is improving."

Flood disaster largest in province's history

More loss to come. Medicine Hat, Drumheller brace for same surge of water that rushed through Calgary

As Alberta's southernmost communities braced for a rush of water that had already wreaked havoc in more than a dozen communities as of Sunday, Premier Alison Redford confirmed the province is in the midst of its largest flood-related disaster in history.

At press time, 25 communities remained in varying states of emergency.

At a Sunday evening briefing, Redford pledged support for victims through the provincial disaster recovery fund and said more details would be provided Monday on how much money will be available to aid thousands affected.

"We will remember this forever," she said. "From High River to Canmore to Medicine Hat and to Lethbridge, I have seen in Alberta what I think few of us could imagine just a short time ago — people with more resilience, positivity and courage than I ever thought possible."

While residents in Canmore, which was the first to declare an emergency Thursday as water surged west of Calgary, began to return home to survey damage, people in the hard-hit High River area learned it could be another week before they could do the same.

"There is no spot that is worse than High River," Municipal Affairs Minister Doug Griffiths told reporters Sunday.

The military was seen in the town south of Calgary Sunday, assisting RCMP in reaching homes that still hadn't been checked. Armoured vehicles were churning through submerged streets and Zodiac watercraft were being used to reach the hardest-hit areas.

Tensions, meanwhile, were rising downstream and to the east where 10,000 people in

Armed Forces

2,200

More than 2,200 Armed Forces personnel are now involved in Alberta flood relief efforts, along with seven Griffon and two Cormorant helicopters.

Medicine Hat's flood zone were instructed to head for higher ground as the powerful South Saskatchewan River rose.

The river was not expected to crest until Monday, but by Sunday it was lapping over its banks in low-lying areas and people were busy laying down thousands of sandbags. A spokesman for the city of more than 60,000 said some sections near the river had been closed.

Mayor Norm Boucher said most people ordered to leave had done so, but a handful were refusing. He warned that officials could not guarantee their safety.

"We're going to go around again to make sure that they're out of there, because the water will be even higher than this and it may be very difficult to reach anybody," said Boucher.

Military, community join forces

Military personnel and community members stood together in hopes of saving weakening berms in Calgary's south Inglewood area over the weekend.

Rapid waters had torn away swaths of land, taking chunks of the Bow River pathway and an 8th Avenue S.E. cul-de-sac, according to Bruce Burrell, director of the Calgary Emergency Management Agency.

"We are dealing with many erosion issues," Burrell said.

Ald. Gian-Carlo Carra also gathered area residents to pitch in. Earlier in the weekend, similar efforts were made to save the historic Deane House, also in the area.

"The time to rebuild is not now, it's a couple of days from now when it's safe and the river has subsided," Carra said.

Though the city declared a mandatory evacuation in Inglewood until Sunday morning, some people chose to ignore it.

"It is mandatory but we're not going to arrest anyone, we're just expecting Calgarians to be respectful and community-minded, especially when we've got a critical situation like this half a block away," Carra said.

South Africa's president asks world to pray for Nelson Mandela

National hero. Office of Jacob Zuma releases statement saying former president and anti-apartheid leader is 'in good hands'

Nelson Mandela's health has deteriorated and he is in critical condition, the South African government said Sunday.

The office of President Jacob Zuma said in a statement that he had visited the 94-year-old anti-apartheid leader at a hospital Sunday evening and was informed that Mandela's condition had become critical in the past 24 hours.

"The doctors are doing everything possible to get his condition to improve and are ensuring that (Mandela) is well-looking after and is comfortable. He is in good hands," Zuma said in the statement.

Zuma also met Graca Machel, Mandela's wife, at the hospital in Pretoria and they discussed the former leader's condition, according to the statement.

Zuma was accompanied on the visit by Cyril Ramaphosa, the deputy president of the country's ruling party, the African National Congress.

Mandela, who became South Africa's first black president after the end of apartheid in 1994, was hospitalized on June 8 for what the government said was a recurring lung infection.

Zuma appealed to South Africans and the rest of the world to pray for Mandela, his family and the medical team that is attending to him.

Mandela was jailed for 27 years under white racist rule and was released in 1990. He then played a leading role in steering the divided country from the apartheid era to democracy, becoming South Africa's first black president in all-race elections in 1994.

As a result of his sacrifice and peacemaking efforts, he is seen by many around the world as a symbol of reconciliation.

Mother arrested after baby rescued from drain

A 26-year-old woman has been arrested in the Spanish city of Alicante on suspicion of attempting to murder her newborn baby who had to be rescued from inside a building's drains, the Interior Ministry said Sunday.

The ministry said the two-day-old boy, who still had his umbilical cord attached and was found wrapped in plastic bags, may have been trapped for 40 hours at a point where the building's drains converged into a manhole in a courtyard.

A neighbour had alerted firefighters at 2 a.m. Sunday to what was originally thought to be a meowing cat trapped inside the drains.

The baby, who weighed 4.6 pounds, is said to be in a serious but not life-threatening condition in hospital, having suffered a fracture to a bone in one arm. The baby had other injuries, which had yet to be detailed.

'Revenge porn' victim fights for new laws

No consent. Private sexual video chat posted by woman's ex after they broke up has had 'devastating' effect on her personal, professional life

Metro in Toronto

Holly Jacobs was in a committed long-term, long-distance relationship with a man she trusted. To keep the romance alive, she participated in a private sexual video chat with him.

She didn't know he'd recorded it, but he did. She didn't know that after she broke up with him it would go viral on the Internet, but it did. Along with her full name, workplace and contact info.

Jacobs told Metro she believes the video was posted as a form of "revenge porn" — intimate photos or videos posted online without the other person's consent, with the intent to hurt them.

In some cases of revenge porn — which has several websites devoted to it — the photos were given freely during a relationship, but the victims did not consent to having them made public. In other cases, photos are taken during a sexual assault and posted online.

Nova Scotia MP Robert Chisholm is hoping Canada will follow New Jersey and make the posting of revenge porn illegal. He tabled a private member's bill before Parliament broke for the summer and hopes to work with the Conservatives on a similar bill in the fall.

His draft bill would make it an offence to distribute nude or sexually explicit photos of someone without his or her consent, punishable by jail time of 18 months to 10 years.

"Victims need to have services available, they need to have support and ultimately what they need is legal protection and perpetrators need to be held accountable," he said.

Chisholm wrote the bill after consulting with Rehtaeh Parsons' family, who live in his riding. Parsons killed herself after photos of her alleged sexual assault were distributed among her peers, many of whom bullied her afterward. No charges have been laid in the case.

"It's not just Rehtaeh — there have been similar cases throughout Canada and North America," he said.

Jacobs lauded Chisholm's bill. "This bill does a really good job of punishing (revenge porn), and gives people who do this what they really deserve," she said. "They deserve to be in prison — up to 10 years is great."

with the pornography. Jacobs eventually convinced police to lay cyberstalking charges against her ex, and that case is ongoing.

She has also launched endrevengeporn.com, a site devoted to advocating for new laws.

U.S. whistleblower seeks asylum in Ecuador, says foreign minister

Passport revoked.

U.S. official said Sunday Edward Snowden's passport was annulled before he left Hong Kong for Russia

Admitted leaker Edward Snowden took flight Sunday to evade U.S. authorities, and is seeking asylum in Ecuador in what has become a game of diplomatic cat-and-mouse.

The former National Security Agency contractor and CIA technician fled Hong Kong and arrived at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport, where he planned to spend the night before boarding an Aeroflot flight to Cuba. Ecuador's Foreign Minister Ricardo Patino said his government received an asylum request from Snowden, and the anti-secrecy group WikiLeaks said it would help him.

Russian media said Snowden intended to fly to Cuba on Monday and then on to Caracas, Venezuela.

"He goes to the very countries that have, at best, very tense relationships with the United States," said Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, R-Fla., adding she feared Snowden would trade more U.S. secrets for asylum. Sen. Dianne Feinstein, the chairwoman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said she had been told Snowden had more than 200 sensitive documents.

Snowden's itinerary takes him on a tour of what many see as anti-American capitals. Ecuador in particular has rejected the United States' previous efforts at co-operation, and has been helping WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange avoid prosecution by allowing him to stay at its embassy in London.

The United States formally sought Snowden's extradition from Hong Kong but was rebuffed; Hong Kong officials said the U.S. request did not fully comply with their laws.

A new spin. Conservative government boosts information services

The federal government employs nearly 4,000 communications staff in the public service, an increase of 15.3 per cent since the Conservatives came to power in 2006.

The sharpest increases came in the two highest-paid job classifications, where numbers jumped 33 per cent and 50 per cent, respectively, data compiled by the Parliamentary Budget Office shows.

"We're laying off people that are producing scientific information and increasing the number of people that are being used to spin it," said Calvin Sandborn, the legal director of the Environmental Law Centre at the University of Victoria. His group helped document repeated cases of scientists being muzzled by government communications rules and staff, a report that convinced the federal information commissioner to take a deeper look.

According to geek lore, Canada's top-secret eavesdropping agency was once staffed by such a crew of oddball science nerds that one intelligence analyst cut her hair at her desk and another built a chicken-wire enclosure around his work area to keep other people away.

The more than 2,000 staffers of the electronic spy service headquartered in Ottawa's south end are generally forbidden from discussing their highly sensitive pursuit of foreign intelligence.

But one of CSEC's senior members opened the blinds a crack in an unpublicized speech a few years ago. The Canadian Press obtained a copy of the May 2010 candid address by Communications Security Establishment Canada signals intelligence chief Shelly Bruce under the Access to Information Act.

Off the charts. Arab Idol victory turns Palestinian refugee into a superstar

The winner of the Arab Idol reality show can't stop adding titles. After winning the popular contest, singer Mohammed Assaf was named a special ambassador Sunday by the UN's Palestinian refugee agency and the Palestinian president.

On Saturday night, Assaf became the first Palestinian to win the Arab world's version of American Idol, setting off wild celebrations across the Palestinian territories.

After the victory, Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas declared the singer an honorary ambassador. "I congratulate the talented singer Mohammed Assaf ... who conveyed the message of the Palestinian people to the Arab nation through his art," Abbas said in a statement.

He was also named a

Food production. Laval student links bee deaths to particular insecticide

Seeding is over for this year on Canadian corn and soy farms. But research suggests the consequences on bees could last a long time.

Laval University master's student Olivier Samson-Robert collected data showing apiaries less than three kilometres from fields with insecticide-treated seeds had three times the mortality rate of other locations.

Samson-Robert aimed to put a figure on the decline in bee populations and determine how much of it was linked to neonicotinoid insecticides, one of the most widely used insecticides worldwide. He said 99 per

Beyond the Border

Peace Bridge brawl won't derail border pact: Doer

Canada-U.S. border co-operation under the Beyond the Border pact will not be derailed by the brawl between Canadians and Americans on the 10-member board that oversees the Peace Bridge, said Gary Doer, Canada's ambassador to the U.S., on Sunday.

"We didn't do (Beyond the Border) to drive it into the ditch on the Peace Bridge," Doer said in the midst of high-level discussions in New York City on the future of the critical southern Ontario border crossing with his American counterpart, David Jacobson, New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo and John Prato, Canada's consul general.

Opposing camps.

Fiscal trouble, declining membership and grass-roots dismay plague organization

Quoted

"I am worried that America's Girl Scouts are now selling cookies to fund pension plans instead of camping."

Rep. Bruce Braley, D-Iowa, in a letter last month to the chairman of the House Ways and Means committee.

Given the friction and financial woes facing the Girl Scouts south of the border these days, perhaps it's time for a giant friendship circle.

Just a year after its centennial celebrations, the Girl Scouts of the USA finds itself with problems including declining membership and revenues, a dearth of volunteers, rifts between leadership and grass-roots members, a pension plan with a $347-million US deficit, and an uproar over efforts by many local councils to sell venerable summer camps.

The tangle of difficulties has prompted one congressman, Rep. Bruce Braley of Iowa, to request an inquiry by the House Ways and Means Committee into the pension liabilities and the sale of camps.

Compounding the problems are tensions at GSUSA headquarters in New York, where several senior executives have quit or been ousted since Anna Maria Chavez took over as CEO in 2011. Last week, some of the roughly 325 employees there were invited to take early retirement, and Chavez said an unspecified number of layoffs are expected in August.

Chavez insists the GSUSA is on the right track, although she acknowledged that sweeping changes in structure and programs over the past 10 years have been difficult for many in the Scouts' extended family. "Change can be unsettling and it is not surprising that some would prefer for us to remain static," she said. "But doing so would be a disservice to girls who need us now more than ever."

Indeed, there's a common denominator between the GSUSA leaders and their critics — earnest expressions of devotion to the Girl Scouts and fervent hopes that it manages to thrive.

"I care so much about this organization, and that's why I hate to see it pulled down," said Suellen Nelles, CEO of a local council based in Fairbanks, Alaska. "We have leadership at the top who are toxic to this organization and need to go."

Hostess is back after going through bankruptcy, and will have snack cakes including Twinkies on shelves next month. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Twinkies comeback is July 15

Hostess is betting on a sweet comeback for Twinkies when they return to shelves next month.

The company that went bankrupt after an acrimonious fight with its unionized workers last year is back up and running under new owners and a leaner structure. It says it plans to have Twinkies and other snack cakes back on shelves starting July 15.

Based on the outpouring of nostalgia sparked by its demise, Hostess is expecting a blockbuster return next month for Twinkies and other sugary treats, such as CupCakes and Donettes. The company says the cakes will taste the same but that the boxes will now bear the tag line The Sweetest Comeback in the History of Ever.

"A lot of impostor products have come to the market while Hostess has been off the shelves," says Daren Metropoulos, a principal of the investment firm Metropoulos & Co., which teamed up with Apollo Global Management to buy a variety of Hostess snacks. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOVE TO LOVE YOU, CALGARY

Dear Calgary,
I love you.

After this weekend I feel like we've gone from a serious relationship into a full-on, head-over-heels, no-stopping-now torrid love affair that knows no bounds. From Thursday night to today, we have seen the city through one of its darkest times in the past 100 years. Yet we shone through and showed the world our best and what truly makes Cowtown an amazing place to live.

Even as mass floodwaters ravaged downtown and outlying areas, the people in our city conducted themselves in a manner that could only be described as uniquely Calgarian. We opened our homes to strangers, volunteered time and services and did everything we could do to get our town back up and moving again.

High Plains Drifter

It shows the true character that so often we may pay lip service to but that at times we may not see in droves. That uncrushable-by-nature spirit that gets us through so many winters. The spirit of volunteering that made the '88 Olympics and so many other events happen. The warmth, hospitality and undying quest to host a party that is the very core of the Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth.

The Sled Island Festival was one of the casualties of the Great Flood of 2013, but in true Calgary fashion, a biblical event was not going to stop the party on Saturday night in Bankview. Furniture was cleared out of houses, amplifiers and drum kits took over kitchens and living rooms and it didn't matter if every music venue in downtown was shuttered, this is CALGARY and we are going to have a good time, dammit. Because pitching in and hosting a party are the two things that we do best. Jars were passed for the bands and the Red Cross. Coolers of beer and barbecues laden with hamburgers were in full swing and operating on a "need one, take one basis." Passersby stopped to take in the show and met their neighbours for the first time, even though they'd lived next door for five years.

It takes the worst in life to bring out the best in us and we have shown what we are made of. So let's use this near-knockout blow from Mother Nature to rebuild and grow stronger as a city, as neighbours and as Calgarians.

Be safe. Help each other.
Your friend, brother and lover,
James Callsen

Flying bike idea gets off the ground

ET-like flying bike takes to the skies

It's a bird! It's a plane! No, it's a flying bicycle! British designers Yannick Read and John Foden have revealed their extraterrestrial-looking vehicle, the XploreAir Paravelo, a bike that transforms into an ultralight aircraft requiring no licence to fly and capable of reaching altitudes of up to 1,220 metres. METRO

Bikes and the Wrights

"The Wright brothers were former bicycle mechanics, so there's a real connection between cycling and the birth of powered flight that's recaptured in the spirit of the XploreAir X1 flying bike."

John Foden, co-designer at XploreAir

Wheweeeee!

- Speed & power. Travels at 40 kilometres an hour in the air, for up to three hours at a time, powered by a biofuel 249cc motor and parachute.
- Design. Foldable, tows a lightweight trailer carrying a powerful fan.
- Plans. If it draws enough public support, it will go into full production and later go on sale for less than $23,488.

It's economical, too

"Unlike a helicopter, you don't need a large hangar and bank balance to own a flying bicycle — you can store it in your apartment and it costs less than a car."

Yannick Read, co-designer at XploreAir Read's previous invention was the "B.O.N.D." (Built of Notorious Deterrents) bicycle, a vehicle equipped with a flame thrower, caterpillar tracks and an ejector seat. It was built following a survey asking cyclists about their pet peeves.

How to get your undead fix

World War Z. Zombies have captured our imagination for years — here are a few suggestions on how to enjoy these infamous brain eaters

EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

It's rarely a good sign when reports of trouble behind the scenes of your mega-budget film eclipse the movie's marketing, but that's what has been going on with World War Z for the better part of a year now, with everything from script problems to massive rewrites to strife between star Brad Pitt and director Marc Forster nabbing headlines. None of this suggests good news when it comes to the film itself. If you're not feeling too confident about seeing the new zombie flick either, here are some alternatives to get your undead fix.

Go read a book

After being worked on by a who's who of Hollywood screenwriters, the film World War Z strays pretty far from the book that inspired it. Why not curl up with Max Brooks' original and envision some worldwide zombie terror with your own imagination?

Go for a classic

There are plenty of sub-par zombie movies out there, so instead of taking the risk of seeing yet another, why not revisit something more dependable? In keeping with the fast-moving brain-munchers of World War Z, we recommend Danny Boyle's

Get your zombie fix by catching up on the latest season of The Walking Dead. HANDOUT chilling 28 Days Later or Will Smith's take on I Am Legend. Of course, there's always Lucio Fulci's unintentionally hilarious Caribbean-set Zombie from 1979, which features a zombie-versus-shark battle that has to be seen to be believed.

Go gaming

The latest season of The Walking Dead might be over, but there's plenty more — and, arguably, better — action to be had in the impressively sprawling, award-winning video game version. But don't expect to walk around as an Andrew Lincoln avatar or anything, as the game is based more on the comic book that inspired the show and uses completely new characters — though you may come across some familiar faces.

28 Days Later is a pretty dependable zombie flick. HANDOUT

Get on Netflix

Maybe you haven't actually caught up on The Walking Dead, in which case good news: The entire series is available for streaming on Netflix. On the film side, you can also stream the zombie thriller Let Me In, which is the American re-

Box office

Monsters beat out zombies

Disney's Monsters University is the weekend box-office winner, according to studio estimates released Sunday. The animated family film, a prequel to Monsters Inc., debuted in first place with $82 million. It beat out Paramount's Brad Pitt zombie romp World War Z, which opened in second place with $66 million.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

make of the stellar Swedish flick Let the Right One In.

Go indie

Writer/director/star Jeremy Gardner made the Battery, an impressively original zombie flick, on a budget of $6,000 — but you can hardly tell. Consider it the antithesis to the bloated World War Z. The indie gem has been collecting awards and accolades around the world on the festival circuit and is now available to rent or own online. Find out more at thebatterymovie.com.

Go to the movies

Instead of the zombie apocalypse, how about just the good old-fashioned actual apocalypse? This Is The End is still going strong at the box office and may be the funniest thing in theatres. And Jonah Hill turns into something sort of resembling a zombie at some point. Plus, it's got cannibals, well-endowed demons and Emma Watson with an axe. How is Brad Pitt supposed to compete?

Fast and furious: Bieber's neighbours mad at star's reckless driving

Justin Bieber's neighbours are so fed up with he and his friends' reckless driving in their gated Calabasas, Calif., community that they've asked the police to intervene, according to E! News. There's also been an emergency Homeowner's Association meeting planned to address the issue. "It has been escalating for the past six months. He has begun to flip over to a really dark side," a neighbour says of Bieber's "aggressive, reckless" behaviour. "They have sent him warnings. He's out of control. Everyone has a Bieber white Ferrari story. God forbid someone gets hurt by that car. He just feels like he is above the law." There are apparently some laws he's not above, though, as Bieber once again found his age to be an obstacle to having a good time. The 19-year-old reportedly requested an invitation to the Miami Heat's victory bash last week at a South Beach nightclub but was turned down by both the club management and the team because he is under 21, sources say.

Brad Pitt says World War Z is "the most intense thing you're gonna see all summer." Oh, I don't know about that. Alcide eating someone's arm on last week's True Blood was pretty arghhhh.

Kim and Kanye reportedly name their baby North West. The Northwest Territories, Oliver North, North By Northwest, WestJet, North Korea and the West Nile Virus plan a class action suit. Kris Jenner, meanwhile, refers to the child as Kompass.

Ryan Reynolds drops out of the Highlander remake. That's really too bad. We were all looking forward to Connor MacLeod of the clan MacS-martass.

Jennifer Lopez joins 33, the dramatic movie about the trapped Chilean miners. "Oh," Jennifer said, "My mistake. I thought it was a movie about famous, beautiful people who are 33. Just like I am. Ooops."

Nigella Lawson's husband, who was photographed choking her, says it was "just a playful tiff." That's plausible. And the swift kick that should be aimed at his crotch is what I would describe as "a gentle kerfuffle."

Leslie Gold of the show

Hardcore Pawn says he would buy Kim Kardashian's baby's dirty diapers. "That's so disgusting," says Kris Jenner. "What in the world is wrong with you? We wouldn't sell that ... unless you also buy the umbilical cord."

Don Ed Hardy says that Jon Gosselin's endorsement killed the Ed Hardy brand. There were, of course, many other contributing factors, such as severely decreased spending power, a demographic shift and ugly.

A member of Whitby Town Council in England says he's regularly abducted by lizard people and has fathered an alien baby but it's no big deal and he just wants to fix potholes. "Why can't we have that kind of politician?" asks everyone in Montreal and Toronto.

Pros and cons of paying allowance

IT'S ALL RELATIVE
Kathy Buckworth,
kathybuckworth.com

The paying of an allowance is a personal choice. To help you figure out where you come down in the debate, here's a handy list of pros and cons.

- Pros
- Kids learn about the real-world concept of "work for money." The sooner they understand this dynamic, the better.
  - Kids have the opportunity to save their own money toward the purchase of things they want but you don't want to buy.
  - You can easily bribe them to clean up their rooms, clear the table, do some vacuuming and maybe even fetch a glass of wine every now and again.

- Cons
- The concept of contributing labour simply because they are a member of a functioning family is lost.
  - Every chore in the house soon has a dollar amount attached to it.
  - They might save their money and spend it on items you think are frivolous (at best) or dangerous (at worst). Where do I land on this?

Well, as the boss of my family, I believe in paying allowance. I know this is how the real world works, and I know that kids under the age of 14 can't earn good money working outside the home.* (*Legally. But check around. You never know.)

No diaper? No problem, with EC

Toilet training.

The new parenting trend is "elimination communication." What is it and how can you implement it at home?

Metro World News in NYC

It seems impossible: A baby — many times not much older than newly born — goes to the bathroom directly into the toilet and not a diaper. Devotees of "elimination communication" (EC) say that it can happen.

Christine Gross-Loh has been preaching this alternative to toilet training for years; her book, The Diaper Free Baby, has been the instruction manual for EC devotees since it was published in 2007. Here she gives advice on being number one in the "number two" business.

How is EC different from regular toilet training?

The most basic difference is that you start EC earlier, before a child has become so used to eliminating in diapers that potty training is a whole new transition he has to get used to (and may be resistant to).

Babies are born with this awareness of elimination, but as they become used to eliminating in a diaper all the time, they lose that awareness — and have to work on becoming aware

EC for every parent

- Gross-Loh aims to make The Diaper Free Baby accessible to all types of parents and she writes for three categories: full-time, part-time and occasional EC-ers.
- She also includes a support group within the book that includes inspiring testimonials and tips throughout every chapter.

again when they reach the age of conventional toilet training. EC-ed children are often out of diapers completely at or before the age when most children are just beginning to embark on potty training.

What advice do you have for working parents who live in cities who may want to try EC?

EC can be done during the evening or on weekends. Even if you are at home with your baby full-time, you may not be doing EC full-time. It's easy to have some diaper-free time during the evening, or sit your baby on the potty before and after his bath. Doing EC does not mean you have to ditch diapers completely.

What are some drawbacks to EC? Benefits?

It's hard to do anything when it's not a cultural norm — you may get less support and less information. Information about EC — about typical stages, about the logistics — is really key. Luckily, the information and support is out there as more and more parents do EC. And there are so many great reasons to give it a try: There are communication benefits (you learn to read your baby just as you learn how to figure out when he is hungry or sleepy), environmental and economic benefits (you go through fewer diapers) and health benefits (less diaper rash). Finally, you are not relying on diapers so much that your child becomes reluctant to let go of them, a problem that some parents face when doing conventional toilet training.

Why do you think EC has taken off in recent years?

I think it's because there are so many parents out there who know more about the world around us. They know that in cultures around the world, it's not at all the norm for a baby older than one to be in a diaper.

When you know that this isn't a universal thing, it makes you feel more open to understanding why and how this is, and to realizing there are some viable lessons here for us.

Preschool cholesterol? Bad eating habits start early

A new study suggests that preschoolers' eating habits could put them at risk for cardiovascular disease later in life. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eating behaviours of preschoolers, such as having meals while plunked in front of the TV, can lead to elevated cholesterol levels that could put kids at risk for cardiovascular disease later in life, new research suggests.

The 2008 to 2011 study of almost 1,100 children aged three to five found those with poor eating behaviours had higher blood-cholesterol readings than children who had healthier eating habits.

"It shows that we should pay attention to how children eat, not just what they eat," said Dr. Nav Persaud, a family physician and researcher at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto, who led the study.

"We should be paying close attention to these young children, preschoolers aged three to five, because the early changes that may lead to serious problems later on are occurring in this age group and it's an opportunity for us to intervene early and get kids on the right track," he said.

The study, published Monday in the Canadian Medical Association Journal involved 1,076 preschoolers enrolled in the TARGET Kids! practice-based research network in Toronto.

Researchers found that "the less healthy the eating behaviours, the higher the cholesterol level," said Persaud. Those behaviours include eating while watching TV — and likely when engaged with other screens, such as computers and tablets — and snacking on fluids that can leave kids feeling full at mealtime. # Shake up your summer grill with Shishito peppers

Never had shishito peppers? You need to track them down. Right now.

First, a primer. Shishito peppers are small, thin Japanese peppers. They look a bit like a longer, thinner jalapeno. But the flavour is quite different. While jalapenos have thick flesh and an assertive heat most of us are familiar with, shishitos are thin skinned and generally sweeter than they are hot.

Except when they are not. For reasons that are debated online, one out of every dozen or so shishito peppers packs a medium-to-hot punch.

During the past year or so, shishito peppers have become a darling of the restaurant scene. Nothing on the epic scale of ramps, which New York chefs in particular went a little crazy for a few years ago. But they have been showing up on more and more menus across the country. Shishito peppers generally are served as a starter, often heaped in a bowl and munched. And the prep couldn't be easier. They are cooked whole, usually with a splash of oil and just enough time in the skillet to lightly brown in spots. Seasonings

Ingredients

- 1 pound shishito peppers, left whole
- 2 tablespoons toasted sesame oil, divided
- 1 tablespoon coarse or flake salt, such as Maldon or kosher
- 1/4 cup finely chopped almonds can vary, though coarse salt is a must.

In addition to having a wonderfully addictive flavour — the trinity of oil, salt and a gentle heat helps here — shishito peppers are perfect for summer.

Start to finish: 15 minutes and serves 4.

1. Heat a grill to high. In a large bowl, combine the peppers and 1 tablespoon of the oil. Swirl and toss the peppers until evenly coated with the oil.

2. Using tongs, arrange the peppers on the grill so they lay across the direction of the grates (not with them). The goal is to prevent the peppers from falling through the grates. Cook, turning often, until the peppers begin to brown and blister, about 4 to 6 minutes.

3. Return the peppers to the bowl (no need to wipe it out). Add the remaining oil, the salt and almonds, then toss well. Transfer to a serving bowl and serve immediately.

I get by with a little help from my co-workers

The task of the ask.
Inquiring with others when you're unsure at the office should never bring you shame

ASHLEY
MILNE-TYTE
Metro World News

Most of us don't like asking for help at work, even when we're overwhelmed. We fear it makes us look weak. In fact, it can bring huge benefits.

Last year I was interviewing a successful small business owner when she mentioned one thing that had initially held her back: feeling she had to do everything herself and do it perfectly. But she soon realized her male counterparts were asking other entrepreneurs for help and advice all the time,

Feeling overwhelmed at work? Ask for help. iStock and that this actually played a significant part in their success.

She let her guard down and began following in their footsteps. She now advises all of the women she mentors to do the same.

I spoke to leadership coach Henna Inam about a few of the reasons why women in particular are so squeamish about asking for help.

I hate bothering people

To turn this perception around, think instead about how you'd feel if someone asked you for help or advice. Most of us, Inam points out, would feel flattered in that situation: "The ego feels good. You're able to give someone something they need and want." So don't hold back.

It makes me look like I can't ## do it myself

There are two sides to this one. First, there's you grappling with your own ego, the stubborn inner child that insists you don't need help to achieve this thing. That's easily dealt with — just tell the child to pipe down. Less easy, as I put it to Inam, is dealing with the fact that surely some colleagues or managers actually will see you as weak if you ask for help. She admits that there is no good answer to this question. Yes, maybe they will. But she is against the idea of women living their lives in fear of what someone else may think about them.

"If (never asking for help) becomes an unconscious habit, that's when it becomes dangerous," she says.

In other words, by all means be judicious about who and when you ask — but if you need help, ask.

Of meetings and melting. Help your employees beat the heat this summer

Are you working in an environment without air conditioning this summer? Indoor or outdoor work conditions can pose a hazard to employees in the intense heat, so here are a few precautions any company can take to provide relief:

Outdoor work conditions

- One frequently overlooked summer risk is sunburns, but providing sunblock for your employees is a quick and easy way to provide them with some comfort and peace of mind on blazing days.

- Keep your workers hydrated. Ensure there is plenty of bottled water on-hand for all workers, both inside and out.

- Aside from water, sport drinks and nutrient replacement drinks can help replenish the body's lost electrolytes.

- Provide breaks for workers to take a rest and have a snack or drink. In the summer heat, it is very easy to lose focus when dehydration sets in, and in outdoor settings such as construction, maintaining a high degree of focus is important to everyone's safety.

Quenching thirst often leads to constructive behaviour. iStock

- Ensure there is access to shade. Whether it's a small sport shade, a tent or a nearby air conditioned area, make sure workers can get a break from the relentless sun on very hot days.

Indoor work conditions

Stock up on supplies. Companies such as Staples Advantage Canada suggest summer-time necessities such as sport drinks, bottled water, and even first aid kits. Your employees are worth protecting all year round, they say.

Top skaters hobbled in crawl to Stanley Cup

NHL playoffs. Health statuses of Chicago's Toews and Boston's Bergeron loom over Game 6

Jonathan Toews means everything to the Chicago Blackhawks, and Patrice Bergeron is the same to the Boston Bruins. This has been a classic Stanley Cup final in large part because those players have put in peak performances.

Toews and Bergeron left Game 5 with injuries and it's uncertain if either will play in Game 6 on Monday night in Boston. If they aren't able to, or do at less than 100 per cent, it changes the dynamic of the series as the Blackhawks are one win away from celebrating another championship.

"Both great players. I think any coach in the league, any player in the league would like to have those guys on their team," Chicago left-winger Patrick Sharp said.

Looking at the production on the ice, it's probable that no two players have had a bigger influence on the cup final than Toews and Bergeron. Coach Joel Quenneville's reuniting of Toews and Patrick Kane might have been exactly what the Blackhawks needed to cure their offensive woes, while Bergeron is as consistent an all-around performer as anyone will find in the NHL.

"He does everything right, basically," Bruins left-winger Brad Marchand said. "He's such a great face-off guy.... He's very tough to play against defensively, and he's been doing a very good job at playing against their top guys."

Boston coach Claude Julien called Bergeron day-to-day with a "body" injury. Quenneville said the Blackhawks were "optimistic" that Toews would play in Game 6.

The Toronto Maple Leafs looked to end their goal-tending questions Sunday by trading for goalie Jonathan Bernier.

Bernier, stuck behind Jonathan Quick with the Los Angeles Kings, wanted to play more. The Leafs, according to GM Dave Nonis, were interested in upgrades at any position.

Golf. Duke takes road less travelled to PGA success

Ken Duke needed 187 starts on the PGA Tour to get his first win, securing it at a tournament that is building a reputation for such breakthroughs.

The 44-year-old journeyman made a 2 1/2-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole Sunday to beat Chris Stroud at the Travelers Championship.

Stroud, who also was looking for his first title, had chipped in from 51 feet on the 18th hole, to get to 12-under par and force the playoff.

But Duke made the better approach on the second extra hole, bouncing his ball in front of the flag and rolling it close.

"Yeah, it's been a long time," said Duke, who turned pro in 1994. "I've been on the Canadian tour, the mini tours, Asian Tour, South American Tour, all of them; Web.com, and it's just great to be a part of this big family on the PGA Tour."

Duke, who came in ranked 144th in the world, is the sixth golfer in eight years to get his first PGA Tour win here, joining J.J. Henry (2006), Hunter Mahan (2007), Bubba Watson (2010), Fredrik Jacobsen (2011) and Marc Leishman last year.

Canadian Graham DeLaet finished a stroke back in third place with a 269. Watson finished fourth, two shots behind, after making a six on the 16th.

"You gotta believe in yourself in everything you do," Duke said. "That's why those guys at the top are winning week in, week out, because they believe they can do it."

DeLaet donates bucks for birdies

"Hopefully it puts a small dent in what they need.... Our hearts are still with them."

Rivers jumping ship on sinking Celtics, source says

Doc Rivers will be the next coach of the Los Angeles Clippers if the NBA approves the rare but not unprecedented trade of an active coach, a Boston Celtics official told The Associated Press on Sunday night.

The deal would bring Boston a first-round draft pick in 2015, according to the official, who spoke on the condition of anonymity because the deal couldn't be final until a trade call with the NBA office. Rivers, who had three years and $21 million left on his contract with the Celtics, must also reach an agreement on a new deal with the Clippers.

Celtics spokesman Jeff Twiss said the team had no announcement.

The tentative agreement on Sunday wraps up weeks of haggling over the deal and frees Rivers from presiding over the dismantling of the team that won the franchise's 17th NBA title in 2008. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Blue Jays soaring after delayed takeoff

MLB. Toronto thumps Baltimore for its 11th straight win and third consecutive sweep

The Toronto Blue Jays didn't hang their heads when they struggled at the start of the season.

The mood remained upbeat despite regular losses. The players knew they had the potential to turn things around and fulfil the high expectations.

Toronto took another big step in its attempt to get into contention in the American League East by completing a three-game sweep of division rival Baltimore with a 13-5 rout of the Orioles on Sunday. The Blue Jays also tied a franchise high with their 11th straight win.

The streak has reinvigorated the team's fan base, the players are all smiles and the early-season woes seem like a distant memory.

"It was a battle early on, we all know that," said Jays manager John Gibbons. "We always figured it was just a matter of time before we started playing better. And (the slump) lasted longer than we expected but that's all behind us now."

Franchise record

The Blue Jays have won 11 games in a row on two other occasions: June 2-13, 1987, and Aug. 27-Sept. 7, 1998.

- They will go for the franchise record Monday night at Tampa Bay.

"We're rolling along right now."

Edwin Encarnacion and Colby Rasmus homered and veteran right-hander Josh Johnson worked into the seventh inning for his first win of the season.

Jose Bautista put the game out of reach with a bases-clearing double in the seventh inning to the delight of the sellout crowd of 45,214 on a hot, sunny afternoon at Rogers Centre.

The Blue Jays (38-36) moved two games over the .500 mark and are now just five games behind first-place Boston. Encarnacion drove in four runs and had three of Toronto's 14 hits.

"I've been waiting for this since the season started," he said. "I believe in this team. I knew that things had to change, that things had to become good for us. So this is the way right now."

Federer's quest for a record-setting eighth Wimbledon title begins at 1 p.m. London time Monday against 47th-ranked Victor Hanesu of Romania.

Murray also plays Monday, wrapping up the day's action on Centre Court against Germany's Benjamin Becker. Nadal, who comes in with a stretch of nine straight appearances in tournament finals since returning from his knee injury, plays Belgium's Steve Darcis on Court 1.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

By all means take advice from your friends but don't let anyone dissuade you from following your chosen course of action. If in doubt, listen to your inner voice.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Try not to give in to feelings of self-pity today or it may color your entire week — in shades of dismal gray! You may be under pressure at the moment but you are tough enough to take it.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Someone you think of as a friend is planning to get rich at your expense, so err on the side of caution in all partnership matters. Just because they were honest yesterday does not mean they will be honest today.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

It is too late to change the outcome of a long-running drama. All you can do is let fate take its course and trust that it will all work out fine in the end.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

If you want a peaceful life over the next few days you are advised to keep your opinions to yourself. That applies both to what you think about the state of the world and to other people's private affairs.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You will have to make a few sacrifices this week, but it's really no big deal. In fact you will rather enjoy putting yourself out for other people's benefit.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

There are so many changes going on at the moment that it may be a bit bewildering. In time, of course, everything will become clear but for now you are advised not worry about the future.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Are you thinking for yourself or are you following a fad just because everyone else is? It may be the latter and that is something you need to watch. There is no such thing as a "correct" opinion.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You may be thinking of giving up on something that is not working out for you. Don't! Everything will change over the next few days and it's quite likely you will begin to make progress.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Other people may be telling you that you need to make changes but your solar chart says they are wrong. You are on the path you are supposed to be on.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

If your inner voice tells you to be careful you must listen to it. Cosmic activity in some of the more sensitive areas of your chart warns you are up against serious forces.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

You are on the right track, of that there is no doubt. So why the persistent feeling that something is about to go wrong? Whatever the reason you've got to get past it. Great things await you. SALLY BROMPTON
